Tennessee's Militia Retreat Before Armed Strikers.

THE STATE'S ARMY SUMMONED

Miners Declare They Will Drive Out the Convicts If It Causes the Death of Every Man in the Valley - Making Fun of the Militia

[illegible] July 20.—The [illegible] between the [illegible] and the convicts who were brought [illegible] the state prison at Nashville has [illegible] reached. When about [illegible] armed strikers attacked the guards who had charge [illegible] convicts in Briceville last Wednesday [illegible] their charges it was [illegible] a general movement through [illegible] the mining district of the state [illegible] Buchanan was immediately notified [illegible] responded by ordering two companies [illegible] Chattanooga and one from [illegible] the scene. Of the fifty convicts [illegible] the guards at Briceville two escaped [illegible] the others were brought to this [illegible].

[illegible] the militia arrived they took the [illegible] along back with them and warned that they would protect them at all [illegible]. Governor Buchanan at once [illegible] the seat of trouble and in a neat [illegible] explained his position to the rebellious [illegible]. He told them that it was his duty to uphold the law and if the convict system was wrong he was not to [illegible] and that the only recourse of the men [illegible] through the legislature. The miners announced that their families were starving and that they were compelled to drive out the convicts if it cost the life of every man in the valley. They made all sorts of fun of the handful of beardless youths, but declared that they would not harm the "spider legged, cigarette smoking dudes," as they characterized the militia, but that as soon as the [illegible] were withdrawn they would release [illegible] in the region. Becoming [illegible] at the delay in recalling [illegible] to try to overcome [illegible].

The troops from Briceville arrived here at [illegible]. They are all in good spirits and [illegible] in the morning with reinforcements [illegible] were badly treated by the [illegible] who seemed to be in [illegible] sympathy with the lawless element [illegible] valley.

[illegible] this morning two thousand [illegible] and other natives who have [illegible] at all assembled. Fifteen [illegible] of these were armed with rifles, the [illegible] shotguns and pistols. They came [illegible] the mines in a radius of fifty miles. [illegible] was complete and their [illegible] placed them along the hillsides with [illegible] precision.

[illegible] "to attack" the little garrison [illegible] gallantly and prepared for defense. It was apparent at a glance that [illegible] would result in a massacre. A meeting [illegible] officers was called. Some declared [illegible] without resistance to the first attack [illegible] sufficient and the mob would withdraw. Others thought that it would be [illegible] every one was in favor of doing [illegible] notwithstanding the exposed position [illegible] were to defend.

The miners called a parley and [illegible] ground by Colonel Sevier. They [illegible] that they had sufficient force to overpower the soldiers but did not care to shed [illegible] if the convicts were quietly turned [illegible]. This request was complied [illegible]. The miners then asked Colonel [illegible] if he would remove his troops and [illegible] convicts with him. He asked what [illegible] done to the mining company's [illegible] which was also under his protection. They replied that it would not be injured. He also asked if an attack would be [illegible] on the Knoxville Iron company's [illegible] just below Briceville. If such was [illegible] he intended to fall back there and [illegible] regardless of the consequences. [illegible] replied that no attack would be [illegible].

The troops then marched out of camp carrying with them the convicts, all their company supplies and baggage. They [illegible] to Briceville and there took the [illegible] Knoxville. The promise not to attack the Knoxville company's stockade [illegible] been violated and the 120 convicts at [illegible] were put on a train and sent to [illegible]. The [illegible] started for Oliver [illegible] where they also intend liberating [illegible] prisoners. The whole of eastern Tennessee [illegible] sympathy with the miners and took [illegible] in spreading the disgraceful [illegible].

MORE TROOPS CALLED OUT.

Nashville, Tenn., July 20.—Governor [illegible] this morning received a telegram [illegible] Blevins at Briceville that over [illegible] gathered below on that place [illegible] prepared to marching [illegible] Briceville stockade. Governor [illegible] who has been guided by the [illegible] since the troubles began, at [illegible] to call out the entire military [illegible] state, and for that purpose he [illegible] telegraphed each company and [illegible] J. L. Weakley to arrange [illegible] transportation for them. Each [illegible] ordered to secure [illegible] Tents and blankets [illegible] from the capitol and [illegible] the special train. The train [illegible] o'clock with the Nashville [illegible] Springfield company and one [illegible] board, and they will pick [illegible] companies from Murfreesboro, Shelbyville, Tullahoma and [illegible] Clarksville and Lebanon come [illegible] through later, and one from [illegible] from Jackson are also en [illegible] special train. There are [illegible] in all, comprising 450 [illegible] will be taken on at Chattanooga [illegible] Nashville train will arrive at [illegible] morning and the Memphis [illegible].

[illegible] was provided with 5000 [illegible] cartridges, while the Washington [illegible] takes two improved [illegible] firing 1200 times per minute [illegible] of cartridges for each [illegible] Governor Buchanan ordered [illegible] to wait at Knoxville pending [illegible] instructions. This is done because [illegible] to have Attorney General [illegible] as to his authority to quell [illegible] independent of the Anderson [illegible] Sheriff Rutherford. An [illegible] has denied that he has [illegible] assistance of troops and [illegible] not want any troops and did [illegible]. It is reported here that he [illegible] to keep out of any further [illegible] the trouble. As a matter of [illegible] the first companies sent [illegible] as a posse comitatus. Under [illegible] the state can only intervene [illegible] officials call for their [illegible] words, the military can [illegible] civil authority, and it is [illegible] Pickett to consider. Mr. [illegible] expected to arrive here [illegible].

[illegible] that the leaders of the miners [illegible] either in [illegible] work or to-day [illegible] led them in each instance. [illegible] merchant at Briceville, but is [illegible] determined man. He spoke in [illegible] Governor Buchanan [illegible] work and [illegible] the governor with indignity. [illegible] are known and [illegible] must be arr[illegible] as the law [illegible].

[illegible] labor. The miners have appointed [illegible] to say that dispatches shall be sent out and what not, and this committee [illegible] of it is in the telegraph office all the time and read all the matter sent out by the newspaper men. The committee [illegible] appointed or under the [illegible] told the operator on duty at the key that if he did not let them read the messages they would cut the wires. A report [illegible] from Coal Creek [illegible] saying the miners declare no troops can be landed there. There are threats that they will wreck the trains or burn railroad bridges.

A number of the leaders in the [illegible] were in the city to-night getting all information they could of the intention of the governor. Some of these men return [illegible] Coal Creek on the K. O. train and others remained in the city. This information may be relied upon as being correct. [illegible] every minute and thousands are on the streets. [illegible] effort is being made for a [illegible] labor [illegible].

SOLDIERS TO BE ASKED FOR.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 20.—State troops and [illegible] who [illegible] Coal Creek by miners this morning arrived here at 4:30 p. m. A large crowd met them at the depot. Loud demands are being made that the governor [illegible] to [illegible] the leaders. It is reported here that the governor will ask President Harrison for force of regulars.

OFF TO THE WAR.

Memphis, Tenn., July 20.—The Chickasaw guards, Hibernian rifles, Bluff City zouaves and the Rozier zouaves, in all about 150 men under orders from Governor Buchanan left this city at 9:30 to-night via the Memphis and Charleston road for Briceville, the seat of the troubles. They will reach Knoxville about noon to-morrow.

CONVICTS LIBERATED.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 20.—After the release of the convicts at Briceville this morning and the troops and convicts had been placed on a train, the mob went to the mines of the Knoxville Iron company and surrounded the stockade and captured the 120 convicts there with the guards. They were shipped away to Knoxville and arrived here about 5:30 o'clock. All convicts are now here in an old building under guard. A call of some labor leaders has been issued for a labor meeting here to-morrow night.

It is reported here to-night that the miners at Oliver Springs have released the 1[illegible]0 convicts, but at 8 p. m. this report has not been verified. The excitement here to-night is intense. [illegible] opinion is heard [illegible] of the labor men say the miners have done right. It is reported that the special train will arrive here at 11 o'clock with the first lot of troops, and at 1 o'clock the second train will arrive. Troops are undoubtedly being hurried forward. The troops who arrived here to-day say the statements made that they would not fight, but wished the miners to capture the convicts deny the report most vehemently. The Chattanooga boys show a brave, determined mind to go back to the front. Many miners from Jellico and Newcomb were in the mob to-day.

False Imprisonment.

New York, July 20.—The navy department will shortly have a law suit on its hands. William McNair, of Boston, a seaman, through his counsel, Gen. B. F. Butler, will sue the department for $[illegible] damages for false imprisonment. McNair's story, if true, shows a flagrant abuse of authority on the part of the officers of the White squadron of which Admiral Walker is chief in command. It seems that during the recent visit of the squadron to Boston numerous desertions occurred and strenuous efforts were made by the officers of the fleet to capture the offenders. McNair, who was a [illegible] man on board Mr. Charles Paine's yacht Volunteer, was enjoying himself on shore on July 13th. He wore the uniform in which the sailors of the Volunteer were clothed, which happens to be in many respects similar to that worn in the United States navy. This caused him to be arrested no less than five times as a deserter. On the first four occasions he was released after a brief period but the fifth time he was held and taken to New York. Before his departure he told the officers who he was and where he was employed, and asked that persons be sent for to identify him. The officers, however, treated his [illegible] in a high-handed manner, and brought him to New York against his vigorous protest and without giving him any chance whatever to prove his identity. On his arrival here he was taken from one ship to another of the fleet but no one could identify him as missing from any of the crews. He was finally taken to the Chicago where he was kept confined until to-day, when he was released. He left for home tonight and will put his case in the hands of General Butler.

Harvest Prospects of the World.

In Russia there is a grave deficit, the peasantry are starving and there is small hope of relief.

In India there is serious anxiety. A famine prevails over a considerable portion of the country. Madras, Rajputana and the Punjab are the worst sufferers. There is drought in Bengal and the need of more rain is urgent. Bombay alone promises a good harvest.

The American harvest will be of good quality and amount, but with the failure of the Indian and Russian supplies, it is of the utmost importance that the English crop shall not be short. The prospect for England, on the whole, is good. In the chief wheat counties, Essex, Norfolk and Suffolk, the crop is above the average, and in other counties up to the average. Their harvest will be late and the prices will be high. There is, therefore, a good outlook for the English farmer to break the long series of disastrous years.

Atchison Meeting.

Boston, July 20.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Atchison Railroad company held Saturday, July 18, the statement of operations of the Atchison road system for the year ending June 30, 1891, the last month partly approximated, was submitted. It showed, after deduction of obligatory and fixed charges of every description, a surplus of $7,531,000. The directors unanimously voted that the rate of interest payable on income bonds September 1, 1891, be fixed at 2 per cent. and the balance of the surplus applied to improvements on the year. Vice-president Reinhart will publish the exact figures showing gross earnings, operating expenses, charges, etc., early in August.

A Gold Excitement.

Evanston, Wyo., July 20.—There is great excitement here over magnificent gold finds that have been made in the Mon[illegible] canon, fifteen miles from here. Fine nuggets and dust are found daily and the gold is of high grade. Several good silver ledges have also been discovered in the canon. Gold has also been picked up in the hills north of this city. The whole country is wrought up to a high pitch and prospectors are fitting out and starting for the fields. Those who have returned are very enthusiastic over the prospects and have dust or [illegible].

An Insurgent Defeat.

Washington, July 20.—The Chilian minister here received a dispatch from Chili this evening stating that a battle was fought a few days ago at Hu[illegible] between the insurgent troops and the [illegible] of the First division of the government army under command of Colonel Almarza, in which the insurgents were completely defeated. The insurgent cavalry, under command of [illegible] Ca[illegible], fled leaving [illegible] number of [illegible] and all their [illegible].

REORGANIZATION.

Postmaster General Wanamaker Rearranges His Department.

CHANGES TO CAUSE EFFICIENCY

The order [illegible] for the consolidation of the post office [illegible] which he expressed in his first annual report, to reorganize the department [illegible] as well as the postoffice and transportation force outside of the department on [illegible] lines. He found at the beginning of his incumbency, two years ago, that there had been no general re-organization of the department force since the office of third assistant postmaster general was created [illegible] years ago. He found, indeed, that the new bureaus, created from time to time were performing their work independently and without particular reference to the department as a whole. Numberless needless details were forced upon the personal attention of the postmaster general himself, and more than that, Mr. Wanamaker found that the different bureaus while they were performing their work conscientiously, were not appreciating their relation to the methodical and progressive whole which he hoped to make of the postal service and not only, therefore, were the various bureaus failing somewhat to keep in touch with all the ramifications of the business and the immense system was therefore failing, in some degree, to progress with the immense development of the country, but he himself had little time for the thoughtful consideration of such policies as he believed might affect the administration and the country.

In his first annual report Mr. Wanamaker recommended the division of the country into postal districts, say twenty-five or thirty, so that the best postal men in those localities might have the supervision of the system cutting off needless routes, putting on needed ones, saving money, preventing irregularities and depredations, instead of waiting until the offenders should have been detected and in general studying the service with a view of improving it in all possible details, big and little. In the same report he recommended the creation of a general officer, called the comptroller, who should be permanent, sufficiently salaried, and the best all-around postal and business man to be had in the country. Neither recommendation was enacted into law, but by the creation of fourth assistant and by the transfer of some of the independent bureaus to this office, and some others to the office of the first and second assistants, the [illegible] general is enabled practically to bring about in part the state of affairs which he had first desired. Colonel Whitfield does not become comptroller, and his office is not permanent nor higher salaried than it was before, but he becomes the general executive officer; seeing members of congress who have any number of important matters of business with the postoffice department; applying himself to the general study of the needs of the different sections of the service, such as the carrier force, and the matter of clerk hire, developing those branches of the service on broad lines and keeping promptly up with the great volume of correspondence which the postmasters have to address to the every-day working bureaus of the department.

It is believed that the postmaster general can with this re-organization feel complete security in the matter of the transaction of the routine business of the department, and can hereafter to an extent not heretofore possible, address himself to the important questions of departmental policy, with the certainty that when adopted by him they will be zealously and efficiently carried out by the staff under his charge.

Finding a Treasure.

New York, July 20.—Seventy million dollars in gold and millions of dollars worth of gold dust, ornaments and precious stones! This is the comfortable find which a contractor of Rio Janeiro is reported to have made. He was engaged in tearing down the old castle of San Antonio, and there he discovered this gold mine where it had been hidden since some time in the last century. El Correo de Caracas, published at Caracas, Venezuela, in its issue of July 1 gives a detailed report of this discovery in an article which occupies almost the entire front page of the newspaper.

Before it was converted into a castle, San Antonio was a monastery under the control of the Jesuits. It is during the period of its history that the treasure is supposed to have been hidden. Underneath the castle are vaults built like the corridors of a mine, and in one of these a large number of chests and bundles were discovered.

The contract for the demolition of the castle stipulated that in the event of the discovery of any precious metal half of the treasure should belong to the state. The engineer promptly notified the Brazilian government, making a statement of the find and soliciting official advice and assistance. His memorandum enumerates the following as taken from the vaults: One hundred and twelve wooden boxes with iron clasps and three locks on each, weighing 830 kilos (about 1,[illegible] pounds) each; four [illegible] iron chests, weighing 115 kilos each; sixteen leather sacks, sewed, weighing 35 kilos each; 800 packages of parchments with a total weight of [illegible]; 20 packages, slightly damaged.

An examination of the contents of these chests and packages resulted in a [illegible] find. The 112 casks contained gold money to the value of about $70,000,000 in a heap of old Portuguese crowns, [illegible] milreis worth about 50 cents, each and the counting of the treasure was verified by documents found in the [illegible]. Among the [illegible] found was a receipt of [illegible] Arbone, superior to the order of Jesuits. The [illegible] is [illegible] millions [illegible].

BASE BALL.

Western Association.

[illegible]

Denver, July 20.—[illegible] Kansas City [illegible] last [illegible] was [illegible] batting [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] Knight [illegible] had [illegible] Kansas City a run which [illegible] Nothing but the [illegible] saved him. The score:

[illegible] Time 1:45. Umpire Knight.

THE REORGANIZED MILWAUKEE CLUB.

Omaha, July 20.—The reconstructed Omaha club will play its first game at Milwaukee next Saturday. Buckenberger will only manage the club temporarily until some other arrangement can be [illegible]. Seven of the old players have signified their intention of returning, and the other teams of the Western association will turn over enough men to fill out the required quota. The team will be under the direct control of the association, which will assume all the responsibility although local capitalists are also interested.

National League.

NEW YORK—BROOKLYN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 20.—The Champions and the Giants played a close and exciting game here today, the former holding the lead until the eighth inning. In that inning Burns and Collins started to run for Connor's long fly. They had a fearful collision, knocking each other senseless. Collins was cut badly on the forehead and concussion of the brain is feared. Connor reached third base on account of the unfortunate accident. Rusie always had the best of the contest, which was [illegible] a pitcher's battle. Buckley's errors allowed the Brooklyns to get the lead they did at the beginning of the game. Attendance 3000. Score: New York, 5, Brooklyn, 4.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 20.—A shocking accident occurred during the base ball game between the Brooklyn and New York National League teams this afternoon which will probably result in the death of [illegible] Collins, the well known second baseman of the Brooklyn team. He and Right-fielder Tom Burnes started for a short fly ball hit to right field. While running at full speed the men collided and both were rendered unconscious. Both men were frightfully cut about the face and blood was spurting from Collins' mouth and ears. Physicians were soon in attendance, who, after an examination, and the men were suffering from concussion of the brain and that Collins was likely to die. The men were removed to their homes. Burns, who was not so badly hurt, as his companion, recovered consciousness about an hour after the accident. When he opened his eyes he shivered like an aspen and bled at the nose and mouth. The doctors think he will recover. Collins was still unconscious at a late hour to-night. His condition is very critical.

BOSTON—PHILADELPHIA.

Boston, July 20.—The home club played a splendid game to-day and succeeded in white-washing the Phillies. Both pitchers were in good form and were effective, Clarkson always having the best of it, however. Captain Allen's errors and Gleason's wildness gave Boston their runs in the second inning. Long, Tucker, Nash and Brodie did excellent work for the Bostons, while Clements and Shingle carried off the honors for the visitors. Attendance 1350. Score: Boston 3, Philadelphia 0.

CLEVELAND—CINCINNATI.

Cleveland, O., July 20.—The "Dumplings" batted Mullane's curves hard at times to-day, but the brilliant fielding of the Cincinnatis stopped base hits and prevented scoring by the home team until the eighth inning, when they got in one run by hard hitting and an error. Halligan and Curtis made the star catches of the visitors and "Shorty" Davis distinguished himself by a one-handed catch that would have been good for a home run. Attendance 1200. Score: Cincinnati, 2, Cleveland, 1.

PITTSBURG—CHICAGO.

Pittsburg, July 20.—"Silver" King was very effective to-day, the Colts being unable to gauge his delivery. The Colts made but three scratch hits, which availed them nothing. The Pirates hit Hutchinson freely at times, and succeeded in [illegible] the Chicagos. Attendance 1700. Score: Pittsburg 3, Chicago 0.

American Association.

At Boston—Boston 6, Louisville 3.
At Philadelphia—Athletic 4, Columbus 13.
At Baltimore—St. Louis 3, Baltimore 1.
At Washington—Washington 2, Cincinnati 5.

BASEBALL BRIEFS.

Grim is looked upon as one of the bright lights of the western association. Anson recently offered $1,000 for him.

W. B. Franklin, of Lancaster, Pa., has been elected president of the Yale Baseball association.

A Complicated Failure.

Atchison, Kan., July 20.—The Howell Jewett & Co., failure is daily becoming more complicated. Sixteen lumber yards have been turned over to C. P. Waggoner to secure the claims of certain banks in the east, and he had sent agents to take charge and dispose of them. W. P. Waggoner has gone to Holdenberg to look after a yard and expects trouble with W. H. Morris, who is in charge. W. F. Guthrie is in Osborne county harvesting [illegible] over to creditors.

A Village Burned.

Chicago, July 20.—A special dispatch says that on Saturday night the village of Sawyerville, Osceola county, Mich., consisting of thirty houses, one general store, one saw mill, shingle mill and lumber yard was totally destroyed by fire. The entire property is owned by the Cutler & Savidge Lumber company of Spring Lake, Mich. The loss is between $[illegible] and $300,000, partially [illegible].

[illegible] turned over to Don Juan as tribute [illegible] honor upon his voyage to Brazil [illegible] 30,000,000 together with 200 [illegible] gold powder contained in the [illegible] and 915 [illegible] to Portugal aboard the [illegible] Brazil [illegible] the last century [illegible] of new treasure [illegible].

The matter was referred to the public grounds committee with power to act.

The matter of the plans for a new city jail was referred to, and the committee on public grounds was given further time to act and requested to make a selection from those offered and report to the council which it believed to be the best.

Marshal Dana presented a communication preferring charges against Policeman Horace Shelby, charging him with assisting two female prisoners to escape from the city jail. The police committee endorsed the paper recommending that the policeman be discharged, stating that it had investigated the charges. All members voted aye upon the motion to discharge the policeman.

Upon recommendation of the water committee David A. Black was elected a special policeman to patrol Buxton creek. The matter of selecting a fund from which he should be paid was referred to the city attorney.

[illegible] a policeman in place of Horace Shelby, discharged.

Alderman Roby stated that the water committee would be able to make a report by this evening, and the council decided to meet again this evening to hear it and to complete its business.

The ordinance was read permitting the rapid transit company to build a double track in West Colorado Springs. Alderman Finegan objected that the members of the committee had not then permitted to see the ordinance before it was presented. The ordinance went over under the rules.

Alderman Finegan presented an amendment to the ordinance concerning licenses. The amendment requires all public conveyances, such as hacks, street cars, etc., to pay a license fee of $25 a year.

An ordinance amending the license ordinance, presented at a previous meeting, was [illegible] requires ticket brokers to pay a license of $100 each per year.

The mayor stated that the upper portion of the city was being irrigated from the overflow in the city reservoir and the lower part from Prospect lake, but that it might be necessary to put in a few hydrants in the upper part of town. The matter of putting in the hydrants was referred to the city engineer and water commissioner with power to act.

Aldermen Bartlett and Finegan called attention to the lack of drinking fountains on the public streets and a lengthy discussion was provoked. The matter was referred to the water committee to report.

Mr. J. F. Burns of the Hook and Ladder company stated to the council that Mr. John [illegible], an officer of the company had died and asked that the council attend the funeral. The invitation was accepted and the councilmen decided that as many as possible would attend.

Alderman Rouse stated that the city would [illegible] to-morrow excavating for the Tejon street [illegible].

[illegible] people from all parts of the [illegible] are constantly arriving in town to see the fight and it is fully expected that the seating capacity of the [illegible] amphitheatre will be sold by to-morrow night. The management have no fears that the fight will not take place.

They Want a Lake

Washington, July 20.—Acting-secretary Chandler of the interior department recently received a letter from Mr. Wood McKnight at Riverside, Cal., calling attention to a report that the Southern Pacific railway company is about to attempt to stop the overflow of the Colorado river, which has formed a new lake in the Colorado desert, the property of the company being placed in jeopardy, and requesting that the secretary intervene in behalf of southern California, which it is presumed the new body of water will greatly benefit. Mr. Chandler has replied that the matters referred to are not within the jurisdiction of the department, and that the remedy of the people against any action or anticipated injury from the operations of the railway company in protecting its property lies in the courts.

New York Stock Market.

New York, July 20.—The stock market opened without feature this morning and dragged along in a monotonous condition throughout the morning. There [illegible] no special changes beyond a slight decline in Burlington and a few others. The news of the further engagement of $[illegible] gold for shipment resulted in some hammering by the bears. Silver bullion broke [illegible] on the large offerings to the treasury to-day being rejected, the July quota having been filled. The weakness of Burlington in the early dealings was said to be due to some inside selling and which the bears made the pretext for hammering the stock.

The $600,000 gold for shipment was engaged by Lazard Freres. It is said that the private contract between this firm and the Bank of France provides for the payment by the bank of expenses, interest, and shipments on all gold shipped to Paris by the firm. Some of the gold will be returned if necessary, but it is said that the intention is to ship gold until the French credits are exhausted. There is very good authority for the statement that the Bank of France is practically refusing the payment of checks in gold, a policy due to its own wish to anticipate or prevent a general hoarding of the precious metal by private holders.

A dividend of 2 per cent. was declared on [illegible] out of the earnings of the company for the fiscal year ending June [illegible]. The treasury to-day [illegible] 575,000 ounces of silver out of the 1,057,000 ounces offered. The closing price of stocks were generally 1-8 to 1 1-2 per cent lower. The sales to-day were 1[illegible],016 shares.

Mrs. Potter and Kyrle Bellew Married.

New York, July 20.—A San Francisco special says: Letters just received from Hong Kong say that Kyrle B. Bellew and Mrs. James Brown Potter were married in that city just before the steamer Baltic [illegible] from the port. The story is that a cable dispatch came to Mrs. Potter saying that her husband had secured a divorce, whereupon she at once married the actor.

An Amusing Yarn About Billiards.

The Paris Figaro is responsible for a highly ingenious statement regarding the origin of billiards. It announces that a letter has been discovered in the British museum which gives the origin of the sport. It was invented by a London pawnbroker, whose name was William Kew. Kew not only lent money but he sold cloth, and for the latter purpose had a yard measure with which he used to compute the amounts. One day, to distract himself, he took the three round balls which are the emblems of his trade they may still be seen in front of certain shops in London and placing them on his counter began to hit them about with the yard measure. He found it made a pretty game. He got a kind of skill in making one ball glance off the other, and his friends who saw him thus employed called the game Bill's Yard. It was soon shortened into billiard. But the yard was the instrument with which the balls were knocked about, and the difficulty arose what to call it. They called it after the name of the pawnbroker—a kew.

Strange to say the British museum authorities have not yet seen the letter on which The Figaro bases its article.

The Late J. K. Emmet.

The late Fritz Emmet invested much of his money in government bonds and always made his purchases through Rufus Hatch, the famous financier. He was dark and swarthy, notwithstanding the fact that he made up on the stage as a blond German. He could always recognize acquaintances in the audience and generally indicated it in some way, but so delicately that the person recognized was almost certain to be the only one to detect the attention.

The largest audience he ever appeared before was 2,400 in London. The smallest was in Columbus, O., where he played the first matinee the town had ever known, and only one person went to see him. The performance was carried through as carefully for the one man in Columbus as it was for the 2,400 in London. He once presented Amos Cummings (who was then a reporter) with a pair of diamond cuff buttons because Cummings wrote kindly of him [illegible].

H. W. STEELE, Manager of the GAZETTE.

Samoa is just barbarous enough to have constant rebellions, and just civilized enough to have taxes. The combination is as bad as cherries and cream.

The re-organization of the post-office department ought to bring a government building to Colorado Springs. But by the time eastern congressmen get through paying political debts the available funds will probably be exhausted, as usual.

According to the crop prospect report issued by the London Times, the harvest will be scanty both in Russia and India. England will have a plentiful crop, but the amount of land under cultivation there is not sufficient to cut down the price of the American product.

The South American liar is distinguishing himself. The stories from the Chilian war, most of which were written in this country, seems to have aroused a spirit of emulation. The cannibal story recently published and the Brazilian [illegible] are very creditable specimens of Munchausen's art.

The trouble in the Tennessee coal fields is one of those unfortunate affairs in which the sympathy of the community is enlisted upon the side of lawless[ness]. Such are doubly unfortunate. They result not only in law breaking, but they weaken the respect for all law. However great the fault of the law it should be obeyed, provided that it does not contravene the principles of con[stitutional] [illegible] and liberty as guaranteed by the constitution. The convict system practiced in many southern states is wrong and degrading both to the convicts and the communities. Free laborers, men who by honest toil earn bread for themselves and their families have a right to expect that they shall not be brought into competition with convicts, who are forced to work, and who for various [reasons] receive no compensation than [illegible] workmen. But when any community which [illegible] helpful to [illegible] such a law, and [illegible] such a system, finds that its execution [illegible] with special [illegible] upon it, an armed resistance to the law is not the right course to pursue. As the governor has well said, it is no [concern] of his whether the law is good or bad, it is his duty to enforce it, and we hope for the sake of law, that it will be enforced. But we also hope that the [result] of the present trouble may be to put an end to the iniquitous convict system which has been disgraceful to the southern states.

We reprint upon this page a special to the Denver Republican giving the details of a petition for an addition to the Pike's Peak park, which was recently temporarily removed from settlement, and stating that this petition had met with a favorable reception in Washington. That this is so, there is additional evidence in our telegraphic dispatches, which inform us that Acting secretary Chandler of the interior department has requested the appointment of a special agent to look up the matter. The lands which are included in the later petition include a strip three miles wide and extending from Manitou eighteen miles north, also a strip six miles wide just west of the other, its south-west corner being near Green Mountain Falls, and extending fifteen miles north; the northern line of the two strips being continuous, and their south line being the same as the north line of the proposed Pike's Peak park, except for the Manitou townsite. As there is no intention to interfere with the vested rights of any settlers it seems as though there could be no [reason]able objection on the part of any one to such an action. It will give us a [common] interest in about 200,000 acres of land, and a protection to the purity, volume and constancy of our water supply. The title to the land will remain with the general government, but the benefit will be to every resident of the county, whether he lives in town or on a ranch.

The decision in the friendly suit brought by Dr. Strickler to determine the matter of water priorities has, as was expected become a fundamental one, and is quoted [as] authoritive in similar cases. A recent instance was a case in the state court of appeals in which Judge Reed delivered an opinion reversing the injunction granted by the district court of Larimer county against John L. Armstrong, water commissioner, in favor of the Larimer County Ditch company. The court of appeals holds that the people along the Cache la Poudre, who previous to the operation of the constitution of the state appropriated water for irrigating purposes from the stream are entitled to what they need in precedence to those who settled upon the ditch, even if the latter need it for domestic purposes. There is indeed an apparent injustice in this. It does not seem right to refuse water to drink to a human being in order that another may use it for his crops. This view of the case so commended itself to the authors of our constitution that they adopted the wise provision that all rights for domestic purposes have priority over all agricultural appropriations. But as regards the rights which [illegible] [acquired] previous to the adoption of the constitution, as Judge Reed well said: "The right to the use of water is property; the title accrues by legal appropriation and [illegible] [da]ted as of the date of such appropriation. To divest such right and confer it upon another without compensation would be clearly an infraction of [constitutional] guarantee." If there is [any] injustice in this, it is [illegible] than [illegible] from a contrary construction, and [illegible] there seems to be no help for it.

Plants and Forests.

The ways of nature are [illegible] [inscrutable] than those of our American party politicians, and as sure as the devastation of our high land forests is permitted to continue, the time is near when the lowlands of the Mississippi valley will be damaged at the average rate of a hundred million dollars a year, and when some fifty-five cities will have to undergo the horror of an annual deluge, equivalent to the havoc of a yearly bombardment. On the other side of the Atlantic, rivers not much larger than the second class tributaries of the Ohio have caused devastations almost exhausting the resources of once-prosperous communities; and, unless the progress of the evil is obviated in time, the same cause will produce the same effects in Pittsburg, Allegheny City, Wheeling, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, Nashville and New Orleans. In Nashville alone a thousand houses had this year to be abandoned before the middle of March, the latter half of which month generally brings the heaviest freshets; 500 in Cincinnati, 710 in Allegheny, with fears of the worst in the lower quarters in New Orleans, where a rapidly rising river has already passed the high water mark of 1885. And yet the winter of 1890-91 was not remarkable for excessive rainfalls or for sudden thaws, the three weeks from the 20th of February to the 14th of March having been cooler than the corresponding period of any winter during the last seven years. What, if the Western Alleghanies should become as the southern Cevennes, and the accumulated snow of a severe winter should be melted by heavy and far-spread rains! "We will reforest our hills," say our temporizing friends, "as soon as the magnitude of flood-calamities has awakened the masses to a sense of their danger; we will plant forest trees and the birds will return, droughts will become less severe and winter floods will cease." Optimists of that sort ought to read the last report of the French Forest Commission, or better yet, the memorandum of a Virginia gentleman who tried to turn a lot of worn-out old fields into a timber plantation. The basis of his operations was a 5000 acre tract on the lower Chesapeake, where the climatic conditions would be supposed to be much more favorable to the growth of young trees than on the arid plains of the far west, or on the torrent-swept terraces of a steep mountain range. The owner, Mr. Burnett Landreth, procured several thousand dollars' worth of the best seed and seedlings, which he planted in well-ploughed furrows, according to the most approved rules of arbori-culture; yet here are the results of his experiment: A small patch of white pine prospered fairly well. Of 150 bushels of black walnuts a large percentage sprouted, but the trees grew too slowly to encourage an extension of the grove. Some 70,000 black locusts reached a height of twelve feet, and had already begun to form shady avenues, when

One September the locust-tree borer mysteriously descended in swarms upon our groves, laying millions of eggs which produced myriads of grubs, which by the next midsummer had mined every tree. We had to cut the trees and pull out the roots with oxen at an expense of $15 per acre. Next the Swiss and Scotch larch gave out, piping of the trunks, the main stem breaking off at about ten feet in height. It did not promise so well at any time, and we had to strike it off the list, as well [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]ous species. Of hickory and pecan the nuts planted were to a great extent, [eaten] by the squirrels, wood-lucks and field mice, and [illegible] which did [illegible] [illegible] such a slow growth that we ploughed them out and replanted the ground with potatoes. The tulip-poplar [illegible] not a success; the rabbits and field mice, during winter ate off from the tender seedlings the sweet, juicy bark, and destroyed nearly every plant. The Italian sumac, planted for its leaves, grew rapidly, but the percentage of tannic acid in its foliage is not greater than in the leaves of the wild Virginia sumac; so its cultivation does not offer much hope for profit. The white oak acorns were largely stolen by squirrels, woodchucks, rabbits and field mice, which ate the tops of the young seedlings, as they did of the poplar.

The fact is that outraged nature at last refuses to be propitiated. Destructive [illegible] is [illegible] the grave of the slain primeval forests, and trees perish in the worn-out soil which still nourishes weeds and thorns. The "storage lake project" would lead to still more expensive disappointments. In order to prevent the sudden descent of highland floods it has been proposed to construct artificial reservoirs, which would have to be filled before the [illegible] [illegible] would [illegible] their [illegible] career of destruction, and which in midsummer could be utilized as feeders of irrigation canals. It would employ a thousand workmen for twenty years to dig out a pond large enough to check the floods which some of the upper tributaries of the Ohio roll down in a single week. The difficulties of the job might, indeed, be [illegible] by damming up a mountain valley at its narrowest point, but the enterprise would, after all, be wrecked by a frequent and wholly unavoidable contingency: the fouling of the reservoir by the accumulation of sand and other sediment. In the course of a rainy winter a muddy torrent not wider than the James river at Lynchburg would pile its diluvium to the brink of the deepest pond now on this planet, and the removal of that sediment would perpetuate the expensiveness of the project, while depopulating the neighborhood of the reservoir by the effluvium of ever dripping mud hillocks. A similar result would follow the attempt to raise the levees of the valley rivers above the maximum of high-water marks. The mud and sand stratum at the bottom of the stream would gradually rise to the level of the dikes; the embankments would have to resume the proportion of chains of artificial hills, and the breaking of a single link in that chain would flood the adjacent lowlands with lakes which the next summer would turn into as many pestilential lagoons. Prevention, indeed, is not only easier than cure, but much cheaper. The hundredth part of the direct and indirect expenses involved in the construction of aqueduct flood-gate lakes and the planting of climate-redeeming forests, would suffice to buy up all the summit woods of the [illegible] American highlands and guard them against fire and timber pirates for the next hundred years. All the New England states, all the states of the southern Alleghanies and the Ohio valley, will be confronted with that inevitable alternative, and the time for decision is getting very short. Prevention or cure is still our choice, under tolerable conditions; a few years hence it will be pond-cure or plant-cure: the construction of half a thousand Moeris lakes, with their gnat and miasma breeding surroundings, or else the planting and nursing of some twenty billion slow growing seedlings, requiring constant assistance in their struggle for survival in a soil swarming with "gophers, rats, rabbits, field mice and chipmunks," not to mention the grubs of the locust or the locust tree borer.

A New Reservation.

Washington Correspondence Denver Republican.

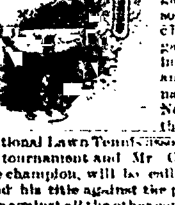

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—The president has received from officials and prominent citizens of Colorado Springs and El Paso county a second petition asking that there may be set apart as a timber reservation, which may be either part of "Pike's Peak Park," for which a petition was received at the interior department some weeks ago, or be known separately as the "Monument Forest Reservation"—144 square miles of government land, lying in the natural drainage basin of the Arkansas river, and described as the west half of townships 11, 12 and 13, [illegible] [illegible] 11 and 12, south of range 68 west; and the north half of township 13, south of range 68 west, containing, by government survey, 92,160 acres. The first and most important reason given in the petition why the reservation should be created is that the tract practically includes, with that heretofore asked for the "Pike's Peak Park," all the head waters and principal tributaries of Fountain creek and Monument creek, upon which Colorado Springs and many thriving towns and settlements and large areas of fertile country are entirely dependent for their water supply. It is further represented that the timber with which much of this land is covered should be saved from the destruction with which it is threatened by the saw-mill and tie-chopper, on account of the many benefits derived from the preservation of forests.

This petition together with the one received some weeks ago, is now in the hands of Assistant attorney-general Shields, to whom they were referred by Secretary Noble for an opinion.

First Assistant secretary Chandler, who, in the absence of Mr. Noble, is acting secretary, said to me today that he was heartily in favor of creating this reservation, and if the matter came before him for final action he would grant the petition. As a general proposition Secretary Noble is earnestly in favor of creating forest and park reservations wherever practicable, and there is no reasonable doubt that he will make a favorable report to the president in the case in question. Judge Shields is also believed to be favorable to the proposition.

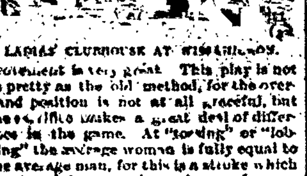

RAQUET AND NET.

Gossip of the Season on the Tennis Courts Girls Coming to the Front.

THE lawn tennis season is coming to its height. It began with the southern states championship games at Washington May [illegible], and it will culminate Aug [illegible] at Newport, when the United States National Lawn Tennis association will hold its tournament and Mr. O. S. Campbell the champion, will be called upon to defend his title against the person who shall win against all the other contestants. While there is more individual tennis playing than ever before the tournaments do not have so many entries as previously. This, in my opinion, is not to be regretted as the constant playing in tournaments has the effect of making tennis a good deal of a business. It is the only sport we have that is confined to amateurs exclusively and any tendency toward making a profession of the game should be checked. The young men who stand at the head of the list are, I believe, still in college, Mr. Campbell being at Columbia and Mr. Huntington at Yale, but neither of them has much time for anything else than tennis. There is, however, no money in the game and therefore it will probably continue to be an amateur's game.

These championship games are not confined to the men, for the Philadelphia Cricket club has organized a meeting for women, and these tournaments have been very successful. Miss Roosevelt, of New York, was the champion last year, but in the games this year she lost to Miss Cahill of the New York Tennis club. The playing of women has improved immensely in the last four or five years. A few years ago there was only one young woman in the country who could put up a reasonably good game against an average man. This was Miss Robinson of Staten Island. Now there are many women who can make a nimble man hustle all over the court. Formerly women were very weak in their service and invariably used a slow underhand. This being easy of return it was a serious hindrance to the effectiveness of their play. Now, however, women serve overhand almost universally and the improvement is very great. This play is not as pretty as the old method, for the overhand position is not at all graceful, but the sacrifice makes a great deal of difference in the game. At "tossing" or "lobbing" the average woman is fully equal to the average man, for this is a stroke which requires deftness and gentleness of execution rather than strength, and may be made with ease and grace.

We get our tennis fashions from England, as we got the game itself. It is not good form now to wear fancy blazers on the tennis court. I am told that plain white coats are the proper thing, and a blazer is permissible only when in very subdued colors. Sashes are not worn, and knee breeches are not thought to be correct. In England they are using colored nets made of tarred ropes. These are impervious to rain and do not rot out so quickly as the white nets. Another advantage claimed for them is that they furnish a good background against which to see a white tennis ball. Small headed rackets are also becoming very popular among expert players. Mr. Sears, of Boston, who was champion for seven years, has always maintained that the regulation tennis racket had too much playing surface.

"You will notice," he said, "in looking through the netting of an expert player's racket the part which has been worn is a comparatively small spot exactly in the center. For this reason I am practicing with a racket which has a very small head. Its advantages are, I believe, a steadier stroke and better wood in its composition. A ball which strikes anywhere near the edge of a racket can never be returned with much effect." Mr. Ditson, the Boston patron of tennis, says he has seen Sears beat very good tennis players with an ordinary lath two inches wide, his opponents using the regulation rackets. This indicates that the eye of a good tennis player is very true.

CLUBHOUSE OF THE STATEN ISLAND CLUB.

Mr. Sears, by the way, is playing a much stronger game this season than ever before, and it is thought that should he go into the Newport tournament he would make it very warm for young Mr. Campbell, who won for the first time last summer. There is some talk of the championship tournament at Newport being enlivened by the presence of two or three foreign experts. No international contests of a decisive character have been played since 1882 and 1883. In those years the Clarke brothers and Dr. Dwight and Mr. Sears visited England. At that time the English unquestionably played the game better than Americans did. The Clarkes had some success in doubles and so did Dr Dwight and Mr. Sears. Mr. Sears having sprained an ankle did not show at his best, and Dr. Dwight was ranked as ninth on the list of experts. Mr. Ditson is so anxious that there should be another trial of skill as between English and American tennis players that he has offered to pay Mr. O. S. Campbell's expenses if he will go to England and enter the tournaments there.

Mr. Campbell has not given his decision to the proposition, but he has announced that after this year he will enter no more tournaments, but buckle down to work. Should he again win the championship at Newport and also adhere to this determination of retiring, then next year he would relinquish the championship to the winner of the All comers match. But it is not at all certain that Mr Campbell will again win, as Mr Huntington Mr. Hovey and Mr Hobart are each playing with amazing success and skill. The champion, too, is always at a disadvantage inasmuch as it is considered "infra dig" for him to play in all the matches. He therefore [illegible] the practice of actual contests. The season will end with the intercollegiate championship tournament at New Haven. The Huntington brothers will probably represent Yale, and the prospect seems very bright for that college to take the prizes for both doubles and singles.

THE CIVIL WAR IN CHILI.

Claudio Vicuna Elected President to Succeed Balmaceda.

The announcement of a civil war in Chili struck most American readers with surprise, both because that republic had been free from revolution for half a century, and owing to its position and the character of its people there seemed less incitement to disturbance there than in other Spanish-American states. It is but a little while also since the Chilians showed extraordinary energy as well as organizing talent in their war with Peru. Americans of the north had therefore come to believe the Chilians much like themselves in desiring stability and being able to maintain it.

CLAUDIO VICUNA.

The president, Jose Manuel Balmaceda, an educated gentleman of fifty-one years, was a Liberal in the early part of his career and a popular orator, but once installed in power he became a reactionist of the worst type and began to centralize power at a great rate. This caused political union of the moderate Liberals and Conservatives, and at the last election they gained seventy-five votes in the chamber of deputies against twenty-nine, and thirty against four in the senate. They at once demanded that the president should reconstruct his cabinet and govern according to law. Balmaceda, on the contrary, proclaimed himself a dictator on the 1st of January last and began a high handed system of arrests and other measures to "tranquilize the country."

Now as Chili is on the other side of the equator its northern section corresponds to our south, so the Congress party got entire control of that section, and with them went the navy. The net result of the fighting so far has been to divide the long and narrow republic in two nearly equal sections, the Congress party controlling the nitrate deposits, which supply the larger part of the revenue, and having navy enough to blockade most of Balmaceda's section. Balmaceda, however, has the army of 5,610 officers and men, while the national guard, or armed militia of 46,641 infantry and 8,300 cavalry, is about evenly divided.

The Balmaceda section has just had its regular election and the president has got his own candidate, Senor Vicuna, elected. He will take office Sept. 18 for five years, and there is a faint hope that he will "conciliate." If not there is no knowing how long the war may continue, if indeed there is not a complete separation. Iquique is the capital of the Congress party, and as the supreme court has declared it the government it has the prima facie right. Nevertheless other governments except Bolivia have not recognized it.

President-elect Vicuna is a baldheaded, middle aged gentleman with a Roman nose, mustache and small imperial, and is of one of the oldest and noblest families in Chili.

KILLED IN MANITOU.

JOSEPH HAYDEN SHOT IN A BRAWL IN A GAMBLING DEN.

A Party of Negroes Play Draw Poker in Layers' Lane With Fatal Results. The Dead Man's Body Was Robbed. Shot in Self-Defense.

Early yesterday morning one of Man[itou]'s gambling dens was the scene of a drunken brawl which resulted in the [dea]th of Joseph Hayden and the wound[in]g of Henry Maupin of this city, both colored.

Late in the evening of Sunday Hayden met Maupin in an alley in Manitou and made the proposition that they should go to the house of Hayden, where (the [wh]o should take part in the pleasures of the place. Maupin was willing, and the [tw]o sauntered down through Layers' lane to a small, white one-story house with the sign "Laundry" over the door. The [ho]use was half hidden and the trees sur[rou]nding the house and overhang[in]g the stream that runs past [th]e lane made the spot a [wo]rk retired one most excellently suited ... about to indulge in the pleasures [wh]ich Hayden and Maupin most en[joy]ed. This was Hayden's gambling es[ta]blishment, his wife's laundry and the [spo]t where Hayden lost his life. It was about half past ten o'clock when the men entered the house and commenced a game of draw poker. They were seated in a little room measuring not more than 12, and entered directly by the outside door of the house. Adjoining this was a room used for faro playing, and still farther on was the room for the "craps" players. Hayden and Maupin sat at a little circular table and played poker. Before long three other negroes joined them, and the game continued until half-past 1 o'clock. Hayden had been drink[ing] far more than he ought, and toward the close of the game had been growing cross and quarrelsome, besides be[ing] a heavy l[os]er. When Maupin [wen]t to cash in $8.37 which was [du]e him on chips Hayden claimed that there was $5 owing the establish[me]nt from Maupin. Maupin denied this, telling Hayden that he had paid the money to Hayden's partner, Jack Haynes. Hayden still insisted upon taking $5 from the money due Maupin, who refused to accept the remainder of ... Hayden, without going fur[th]er into the discussion, put his hand on his revolver, and Maupin instantly [res]orted to words in a vain attempt to [paci]fy the drunken gambler. Hayden [move]d close before Maupin, put his [han]d against his shoulder, held him at arm's length, put the muzzle of [the] pistol close against the lapel of [Ma]upin's coat and fired. The ball en[tere]d the breast, cutting a gash in the [mu]scles and dropped out into the [ma]n's clothing. The wounded man in[sta]ntly grasped Hayden's hand that held [the] pistol and a scuffle ensued. A mo[men]t later Maupin had wrested the [wea]pon from Hayden's grasp and in the [exci]tement of the moment fired it, cut[ting] off the end of one of Hayden's [fing]ers. Maupin then stepped back[war]d toward the doorway of the next [roo]m and his desperate antagonist put [dow]n his head and came toward him [wit]h the intention of butting him. [Mau]pin stood in the doorway, aimed, [and] fired. The ball struck Hayden [in t]he forehead and came out at the [bac]k of the head. The fatally-wounded [man] fell forward on his face and lay in a [poo]l of blood. As the man fell the ... of negroes rushed from the house [thor]oughly terrified and left the dead [man] alone with the poker chips scattered [aro]und spattered with blood, the chairs [scat]tered about the room, and the table [ove]rturned. A greasy lamp dimly lit up [the] room. The moonlight came in un[der] the curtain through some small ... of glass, making the ... a de[cide]dly tragic one.

Maupin ran with all his speed toward [the] city. According to his story he [fou]nd his wound was a fatal one, and [whe]n he had run along the ridge of hills [to t]he electric car track, and had sunk [dow]n in an exhausted condition by a ... fence he believed he was on the ... dying. He soon recovered him[self], however, and walked rapidly toward [his] home.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the cor[one]r's inquest was held with the follow[ing] jury: C. A. Pollen, C. F. Tingley, [Geo]rge Bayne, Herman Gesling, H. F. ... and Samuel Lindsey. The ver[dict] declared that Hayden came to his [dea]th by a pistol in the hand of Maupin, [and] that Maupin fired that pistol in self[-def]ense. Assistant-district-attorney Coch[ran] represented the state.

[A]t about 1 o'clock in the afternoon [Ma]upin was released from imprison[men]t, and was escorted back to this city [by] his wife and a number of colored [frie]nds.

[H]ayden, the man whom Maupin [kill]ed, was well known in Manitou where [he li]ved with his second wife and [a c]hild in a stone house behind Gir...'s market on Ruxton avenue. He [was] janitor of the city hall and took ... of the Journal office. He was a powerfully built man of about forty [year]s of age, and after drinking was [alw]ays quarrelsome and unmanageable. [His wi]fe states that she cares less about ... than she does about the ... condition of the child and her ... situation.

[M]aupin is a man in the prime of life, ... built and muscular. Last Mon[day he] came to this city with his wife [from] Pueblo, where he had been work[ing as a] barber, and engaged board and ... at a house on Sahwatch street, [near] the Home hotel.

[Whe]n Hayden's body was examined [yest]erday morning it was discovered that ... that he had in his pocket ... the fatal shooting occurred had been ... and a colored ... [Brad]ley who was one of the gamblers ... when Hayden was shot, ... on suspicion of being the thief. [Wh]en the men rushed from the house ... Hayden fell, so great was their ... that they left some very nec... behind them. Bradley left his ... and discovering the fact some time ... returned to the house where the [dea]d man was lying. Not long after the ... men returned after what they had ... in their sudden flight, and ... Hayden's body was ... and robbed. Bradley was therefore chosen as the most probable thief, and he now proclaims loudly against his imprisonment behind the gloomy bars of the city jail.

John Laber Killed.

About 10 o'clock Sunday morning Mr. E. S. Wooley, of Wooley & Van Vechten, owners of the Colorado Springs Transfer company, went to the stables on South Cascade avenue, and asked for his foreman, John Labor. He was told that Laber had just gone into the stable to put some liniment on the leg of a horse that had been injured. Mr. Wooley went toward the stall of the horse and there found the foreman lying unconscious on the floor beside the animal, and badly wounded in the head. The sufferer was taken to the sisters' hospital and immediately given every possible attention. It was found that the left side of his head had been crushed in and an operation had to be performed, removing portions of the skull. The injured man lived until twenty minutes of 2 o'clock yesterday when he died, never having regained consciousness.

It is impossible to tell exactly how the accident happened, but it is probable that the liniment put on was irritating and caused the animal to kick and that Laber was struck in the head. There was the imprint of the cork of a horse's shoe on one of the ears. There are reasons to believe that the man may have fallen in a fit and been tramped upon by the horse. The animal was not considered at all vicious, and the foreman was a very experienced man, having been in the employ of Mr. Van Vechten for several years when he was managing the horse car railroad.

Woolley & Van Vechten very much regret the accident and have done everything possible for the relief of their foreman, whom they very much liked and respected. Laber was a German and has a father living at Zeinsbin, Germany, and relatives in this country. An attempt is being made to find the relatives. Laber was about 30 years of age and very much liked and respected, as he was a steady fellow and a good workman. The date of the funeral will be announced later.

Wool Markets.

Coates Bros., wool commission merchants of Philadelphia, have the following comments on the state of the market in their wool circular for July 15, 1891: "There has of late been more inquiry and manufacturers are purchasing desirable wools to some extent. Washed fleece is now in fair supply and buyers can obtain such grades as suit their wants. Territorial descriptions are moving slowly and buyers' views are low; these wools are generally in better demand during the latter summer months and it is not unusual that there should not be active inquiry for them in the early part of the season. Advices from most wool-growing sections show that buyers are still acting very cautiously and wool is being taken at conservative figures. The condition of wool markets seem to be governed largely by the de[press]ion in general busin[ess] more than from particular causes incidental to manufacturing, and if the country experiences a revival of confidence and industry in consequence of the unusually abundant grain crops we may expect a corresponding benefit to wool interests."

The Mansions, in spite of malicious rumors that it "would close up for the season," is filling up satisfactorily. This means much when it is remembered that it has 300 good rooms.

Mrs. E. J. Eaton, wife of Secretary Eaton, Mrs. A. A. McGovney and Miss Lulu McGovney were participants in the hop given by the Mansions and Manitou hotels Saturday evening.

Governor Des Voeux, of Hong Kong, and family, left the Barker house yesterday. They have a private car east from Denver. He made a number of friends in the town while here.

The supplement half-tone picture of Ute pass, published by THE GAZETTE Sunday, largely added to its sale. It was a cheap and handsome souvenir for tourists to take home with them.

The religious services on Sunday were well attended and held at the usual places. A tourist and stranger, Rev. Dr. Thorne, of Iowa, preached to the Methodists in the morning. At evening service Rev. A. K. Stabler addressed the young men.

The cog wheel route carried 336 persons to the summit on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Among them were the Monday Night club of Pueblo, counting 107. The first moonlight excursion leaves the Manitou depot at 4.45 p. m., to day.

Mr. J. G. Hiestand received a letter from an old employe named J. Schranth, asking for employment as a lapidary yesterday, and happening to look over the Denver Republican a few moments after, saw an account of his death by drowning, at the Broadway Natatorium in Denver.

PARKERSON INTERVIEWED.

Mr. W. S. Parkerson, of New Orleans, who with his wife and sister-in-law are at the Manitou hotel, will be remembered as the gentleman whose courage was equal to his convictions in the matter of the Italian criminals who so foully murdered Captain Hennessy, the efficient superintendent of police in New Orleans. The speech he made to his fellow citizens resulted in their swift punishment. He politely intimated to the Manitou representative of THE GAZETTE his disinclination to talk on that particular subject. Mr. Parkerson stands about six feet high and has a face expressing great determination of character. In response to inquiries he stated that the police force of his city was but 200, probably the smallest for a population of 270,000 people in the world; that it was the second largest port of entry in shipping tonnage in the United States. The principal exports were wheat, cotton, sugar, rice and corn, in loading which on the ships laborers earned from $6 to $8 per day; wages were higher there in all lines than in the north. A peculiar feature relating to the trades was, that negroes and white men getting equally good pay worked or did business side by side in every branch of mechanics, carpenters, house-builders, masons, etc., and that no abject poverty existed there: in both respects that seemed to be in marked contrast with cities east and north. Vaults open to the air, and sealed wagons to carry away deposits constituted their only sewerage system, their drinking water was supplied by rain caught in cisterns or filtered river water. That for other purposes came from artesian wells 500 to 700 feet deep; in the January and June rise of the Mississippi the volume of water was increasing each year, from the cutting away of the great forests north and west and subsoil drainage of ponds and places north, where water would otherwise accumulate and flow off or be absorbed gradually, instead of which it flooded the Mississippi and caused their levee system to cost more each year to hold the increased volume and stand the enormous pressure, and though Uncle Sam had appropriated $300,000 this year it needed perhaps ten times as much to build a levee to last a quarter of a century. A committee of government engineers had recommended that a navy yard be placed at Algiers, which is directly opposite New Orleans on the river, and stands in the same relation to it as Brooklyn does to New York. In closing the interview mention was made of Mardi Gras, a movable feast and pageant occurring each year on Shrove Tuesday, the day preceding Lent, happening this year in February; and that every race of people on the globe were represented in the city which had a colony of 30,000 Italians and 50,000 negroes the majority of all classes and colors were of French origin.

WORDS OF PRAISE

Are heard on every side, from the travelling public, for the unsurpassed service of the Santa Fe route. It is justly said that the Chicago vestibuled express is the finest train by all odds, that comes into Colorado. The very latest improvements in palace cars. Unexcelled dining car service. No change of cars between Colorado Springs and Chicago.

The special Pullman sleeping car left at Colorado Springs, daily, in which space may be reserved at the city ticket office in the Opera House Block. Telephone 31. C. C. HOYT, Agent.

The only line that does it!
Does what?
Runs Free reclining chair cars

A DAY IN DENVER.

In order to secure it take the Santa Fe train at 4.?? or 5.00 a. m., which will give you almost the whole day in Denver. Trains returning leave at 3.00 and 5.15 p. m.

G. A. R.—ATTENTION!

It is a long time yet before you will have your knapsacks packed for the great encampment to be held at Detroit, Mich., but some of you are even now inquiring as to the best route.

If you will ask any ticket agent or hotel clerk for a folder containing a map of the Great Wabash route and will examine that map, you will see that this line offers inducements unequalled. For instance you will see that the Wabash can take you from either Kansas City or Council Bluffs, by way of St. Louis and Chicago, or Toledo, or via the direct air line straight to Detroit without change of cars.

Write to me for full information and valuable pointers. C. M. HAMPSON, Commercial Agent, 1227 17th St., Denver, Colo.

IT DON'T COST ANYTHING

More to travel via the Great Rock Island route, and enjoy all the advantages of this popular road than it does via inferior lines. Ticket office, 12 Pike's Peak avenue.

DID YOU MENTION EASTERN RESORTS?

In this connection do you know that the Missouri Pacific Railway is the only line running FREE reclining chairs and Pullman buffet sleeping cars from Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo through to Kansas City and St. Louis without change, connecting in Union Depots with all lines to the east. C. A. Tripp, General Western Passenger Agent, 1702 Larimer street, Denver, Colo.

Our citizens who have not tried those new parlor cars on the afternoon Santa Fe trains should do so. The cars are veritable parlors and the chairs as comfortable as the finest parlor chair, not to be compared with the ordinary chair cars; something entirely new.

WHEN YOU GO EAST

Be sure you start right. This means to start via the Great Rock Island route as this is the best line running east from Colorado Springs through vestibuled limited trains to Chicago via St. Joe or Kansas City, making close connections at these points with all lines east, north or south. Ed Hartman, the night guard at the county jail, has been discharged. Sheriff Jackson found him sound asleep Sunday night, and decided that such a guard was not wanted there James Duncan will take Hartman's place.

There will be a special meeting of the Hook and Ladder company in their room in the city hall this evening at 8 o'clock to take action in regard to the funeral of John Laber. All members of the fire department are invited to attend the funeral.

An attachment was made on the property of the Colorado Springs Lumber company yesterday for $9,[illegible]70. The attachment was filed by Erastus Johnson for bills owed him by the firm Three attachments were also made against the hardware company of Long & Ott Bros amounting to over $1000.

The tent meetings still continue with unabated interest The discourse this evening is "Spiritualism; The Phenomena Explained." Every one is invited to hear this discourse To-morrow evening the subject will be "Is the Bible Divinely Inspired" The tent is comfortable seated and everyone is made welcome.

The county commissioners yesterday opened the bids for two iron bridges over Dirty Woman's creek The bidders were The Bullen Bridge company, of Cincinnati, the King Bridge company, of Cleveland, and the Missouri Bridge company, of St. Louis The commissioners will make their decision this morning at 10 o'clock.

Pearl Lacey, the girl arrested on a charge of stealing money from the house of Mr. A. S. Holbrook, where she has been employed was acquitted in Justice Walker's court yesterday afternoon. It was found that there was no ground for having any suspicion of the guilt of the young woman who told a clear story in regard to the matter

At The Antlers pavilion to-night Gracie Hopkins will give her second reading in the city This reading is for the little lady's own benefit and she should have a large audience. Tickets may be obtained at the Consolidated book store or at the hotel offices. Little Gracie has just returned from Australia where she created the part of Little Lord Fauntleroy.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W Tansill returned home on Sunday from an extended trip into New Mexico and the Pacific coast Mr. Tansill's friends are pleased to find him unusually well after the trip. He established a branch of the R. W Tansill tobacco factory while absent, at Portland, Ore., and the famous "Punch" will be even more familiar in the north west hereafter

The Kansas editorial party returned to the city Sunday evening from a visit to Pueblo. Yesterday twenty of them took a trip to Pike's Peak and yesterday afternoon they visited the Casino and Cheyenne canon. A concert was given for their benefit by the Hungarian orchestra. The party left for home at 7.20 last evening on the Rock Island

There has been some considerable grumbling of late among those who have been compelled to go to Cripple Creek over the fact that the old Cheyenne toll road is in such wretched condition that they are compelled to go around by way of Florissant. The residents along the old road also have always felt aggrieved that they were compelled to pay toll at the Dixon gate The county commissioners took the matter up sometime ago and got a road condemned through, but through an informality it was stopped. The commissioners now state that they propose to immediately take up the subject and open up the road The trouble at present is that no one owns the road and is responsible for it.

There has arrived in this city a bicyclist from New Bedford Mass who is on a journey from that place to San Francisco, and has already traveled on his wheel 2107 miles. This is Allen W Swan of Boston, Mass. He left New Bedford May 24, and has made his journey via Providence, New Haven, New York Philadelphia, Gettysburg, Hayestown, Columbus, O, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Garden City and Pueblo. He has arrived in this city just eight weeks from the time of the start From here the enterprising bicyclist will make a trip to Denver, and upon his return will enter the mountains at Manitou From Manitou he will journey up the Ute pass, across South park to Hartsel, Leadville Red Cliff, Grand Junction, Salt Lake City and Ogden, from which place a side trip will be taken to Yellowstone park Returning to Ogden the trip will be resumed across the sandy desert.

John Shank an old man 64 years of age who has been living in this city for the last three or four years, died suddenly from heart disease at about 5 o'clock Sunday morning at the residence of Mrs. Jones, 114 South Wahsatch avenue. Last Thursday afternoon he complained of sickness, but the next day was feeling better and able to drive his vegetable wagon, which furnished him a living On the morning of his death Shank called suddenly for a glass of water, and before it was brought him he had expired. Mr. Shank left nothing behind him to give any clue to his life or whereabouts before he came to this city, and all that is known is the fact that he has relatives in Pennsylvania and owns property in Denver His only possession that he left behind him in this place is his horse and wagon.

Joseph Schrauth, a former resident of this city, was drowned while swimming in the Broadway natatorium, Denver, Sunday night. Schrauth was a lapidist by trade and formerly worked for F. F. Horn in this city. He was about 24 years of age and a cripple. He was quite well known in this city, and was a young fellow deserving a good deal of credit for such success in life as he had achieved was entirely due to his own efforts Schrauth was bathing with a party of friends, and quietly sank into the water without its being known. When his friend got ready to leave a search was instituted and the body found in the water.

A special dispatch to the Denver News from New York, yesterday, stated that Jay Gould and part of his family would start for Colorado Springs during this week. Mr Gould is out of health and comes to Colorado for rest

Pike's Peak Park

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Acting-secretary Chandler of the interior department has requested the commissioners of the general land office to direct a special agent to make an investigation of the lands described in the petition filed in the department requesting that certain lands in Colorado be set apart for the purpose of a national park to be known as the Pike's Peak National Park and those described in the [illegible] petition filed by Mr. G. [illegible] Parsons of Colorado Springs for the [illegible] of certain other lands adjacent to [illegible] in the first mentioned petition

The act repealing the timber culture laws provides that the president may from time to time set apart as public reservations any of the part of the public domain wholly or in part covered with timber or undergrowth. The special agent will give an opportunity to persons to submit their views, and will prepare lists showing the tracts of land in the projected park to which any claim is asserted, etc., so that the department can act intelligently in the matter.

Weather Indications

WASHINGTON, July 20.—For Colorado Fair Tuesday; cooler, northerly winds
